Look your diagnosis in the eye, then consider every way to conquer it. Like participating in a clinical trial. When you participate in a clinical trial, you are joining the front line against a disease. This is where treatments are tested and medical science advanced. It’s where researchers learn what works.

Ask your doctor if a clinical trial makes sense for you. And start working to make your condition history – for yourself and for all of humanity.

Find out more at ClinicalResearchTrials.nih.gov